

Many animals may require surgery other than spay or neuter. Accidents happen and sometimes they result in an injury that requires surgical repair. As pets age, they may develop lumps that need to be removed surgically. Griffith Animal Hospital is equipped to perform many surgeries. Our surgical suite has two heated tables to keep the pet's body temperature stable. We also have monitoring for your pet such as ECG, blood pressure, pulse, oximetry, and esophageal stethoscope.

No matter the type of surgery being performed, you can be sure we have taken every precaution to be sure our surgical procedures are safe. Sterilization is an important part of every procedure. Also, each patient is monitored from induction through recovery and post operative. If you have any questions or would like to schedule a surgical consultation, please call us today.
